RELEASED IN PART

B1, 1.4(D)

K: On that stop in Suda Bay -- I can't guarantee you this won't get out on the plane.

H: I think they were right to say it probably would get out.

K: I don't see how I can keep it secret.

H: I don't think we should. He came back again and wanted to suggest Rhodes.

K: Now there won't even be any pretense because I would be getting there after dark.

H: Rhodes, <sup>(place)</sup> is terrible. I think there is nothing wrong with it getting out. We have agreed to normal operations in Suda now.

K: I think Kubisch could find some tactful way of mentioning it to him.

H: We don't have his final word yet.

K: Did I see a final cable saying he won't do it. They have to get off the line where domestically they kick us around and internationally they try to use me. This can't go on.

H: That's right. No that cable was someone reporting in on his impressions, it wasn't the final answer.

K: Oh, maybe Jack could put -- he can't insist on it I know.

H: You are not coming down because it isn't serving your purposes. If he would go to Rhodes...

K: Right, it is odd for us to try and understand why he would go to Rhodes and not Suda Bay. It is odd for us to normalize relations under these conditions. It doesn't seem to have affected the Turks as much as we thought.

H: No, they are concentrating on their domestic politics.

K: I have promised Bsitsios that we would make an effort to initiate a Turkish reply.

H: They have turned over a reply but we don't think it will be any good. Once we find out what it is we might want to urge them to put in some more territorial details.

K:

H: You may be seeing Calayangil in Nairobi.

K: Is he down there?

H: Yes, he has accepted your luncheon invitation.

K: That makes it all the more important that Bsitsios show up in Suda Bay.

H: Did Wells' message on the labor thing come up to you at lunch.

K: What was it.

H: That the King was anxious to make a contact with the AFL/CIO.

K: Was there a specific proposal?

H: No, just that we mention it.

K: I mentioned it to him.

H: They have made one contact through Brown.

K: The next time they make a contact they should let us know and we can let Kirkland to something.

H: O.K. Fine.

K: O.K. Good.
